

THE CAPTAIN OF THE SAN FRANCISCO A MARYLANDER.—We learn that Captain James T. Watkins, the noble and heroic commander of the unfortunate steamship San Francisco, is a native of Anne Arundel county, Maryland, and a nephew of the Rev. Nicholas J. Watkins, of Annapolis. His parents died when he was quite young. His wife, too, instead of being a native of Boston, is from the same county. She was formerly a Miss Merriken, and resided on the north side of the Severn river.—Balt. Argus.
