

Look What We've Got Now

During a busy afternoon, Mr. Martinelli, Mr. Hess, and Mrs. Dugan look over information on the new office computer.

Our first full year in the new addition, and it looks good.

It's always nice to see the front of the school. On the first day of school it feels like "Welcome back everyone."

Every year on the first day of school, all high school students meet with the principal and superintendent to discuss what the year has in store for us. A new student from Slovakia, Julia Domsitz enjoys her new friends and finding out more about MCS.

We've Got Something New

Looking down the hall, what do you see? Some people are wondering what class is where. We've got new people and our new addition. Students have gotten themselves into new things this year. Now, we've got kids filing through new halls, looking for where they belong. What a new idea, even Middle Level Advisory Groups. We've tried to improve everything we've ever had. It's got to get better and better, and now is the time.

Exhausted from playing, Chris Curasi, a new kindergartener, enjoys his nap before he is awakened up by the aide.

Reacquainting themselves with Mrs. Collison, these students work on choosing a name for their advisory group, a new thing for the middle level students. In the morning rush, students hurry to their lockers in the new wing so that they won't be late for homeroom. opening

Laughing Faces, Happy Looks

If you take a good, long look at the faces on this page, what you will see is some smiles. We've got them. The school is full of happy people. They've got smiles and laughs everywhere. Now, perhaps it isn't always wonderful, but if you look around MCS, you'll see something to smile about. What about just plain good friends? We've got friends at all ages. We have room to grow. And we've got reason to smile now.

Picture Perfect Mrs. Collison also looks happy to be starting the year off on the right note. Sarah Galley is sneaking up behind her.

Danny O'Connor is greeted back to school by happy faces, Mr. Holcombe, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Perkins.

Reading always is this fun. Reading in a pair is even better. Ask Brian Dunigan and Kirsche Owens.

Making a face, and a happy one, at that. Oliver Bourgeois shows his silly side. and Willie Burdick can't help but smile.

Telling a secret can also be fun. Kaitlin Sanborn really loves what Cassandra Sellards has to say.

Now There's Work To Do

When you look around the school, you'll see what people are doing. There's never a time we've nothing to do. When it's time to go by the bell or to a special, we've got to get moving. There's studying to do now before any number of tests. The school looks great thanks to the people who work to clean it. What we've got are work schedules to stick to. We've thought the work was endless at times. We've got no time to sit around, for now the year is flying by.

Are you listening? Sarah Moore tries to get Lisa Amatuccio's attention while studying in study hall.

With eyes focused on the grade of Cecilia Mannino's paper, Mrs. Birdsall explains to Mrs. Mannino how the test was set up while Peter Mannino stands by during Open House.

We've Got To Do It As a Team

Mrs. Holcombe said it best. "Without the rest of us...Well, we'd first have to be here at 6:30 in the morning to start breakfast and lunch. I don't even know who would do the dishes. And who would ever unlock all the doors that Mr. Finneran opens all night?"

It's true. If it weren't for some of us, the rest of us would perish. But, then again, if it weren't for the rest of us, some of us wouldn't be needed. The buses pull out of the bus garage

The buses pull out of the bus garage somewhere after 6:30 am. They travel all over the area, picking up children and taking them several different places. The doors are unlocked and the janitors are cleaning bathrooms and polishing floors by 6:00. Then the teachers start arriving. By 8:20, breakfast is ready, the buses are unloading, the office machines are turned on, the class room doors have smiling teachers in them, and the students know that life goes on.

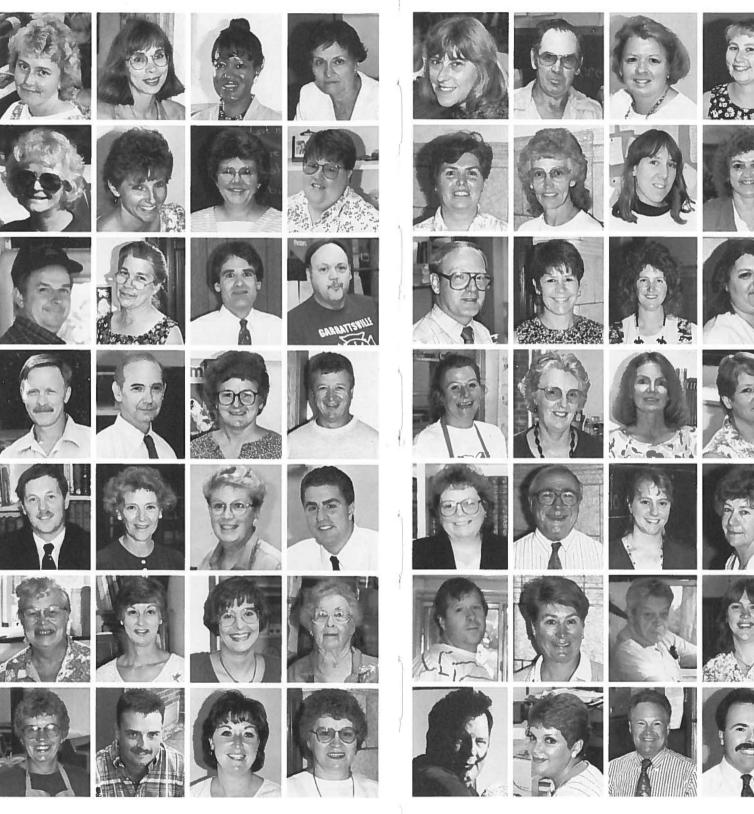

All day it's the same thing. We need papers run off, that's Ms. Hazen's job. We need to find snack milk, we go to the ladies in the cafeteria. We have a discipline problem, we turn to Mr. Martinelli. If there's mud tracked in, we call Mr. Hoag. And if a child gets a headache, we take him to Mrs. Elliott. Moms call Mrs. Phillips for someone to get our homework; Mr. Gould calls dads to tell them we aren't doing our homework. Mr. Turnbull puts lines on the field so we can tell the goalie box from the mid-field. Mr. Card unlocks our stubborn locker for our sister who has to get our homework because we were sick a day. Everyone needs everyone else.

Mrs. Sloan says, "I ask colleagues all the time for advice." And Mrs. Ritzman adds, "I see educational assistants frequently during the day because of my job as consultant teacher. It's a real team effort."

Even the students know that it takes everyone to run the school. Jeremy Eldred says, "Who would tell me what to do if it weren't for all these adults?"

Mrs. Kodrich, the library aid, knows she needs a team approach. "I really depend on Mrs. Kirsch. If the students didn't come to the library, however, I wouldn't have a job. And I help teachers order materials and fix their AV equipment."

It takes everyone to make a school go. It really is a team effort.

The Class of 1996 presented the play called The Nit Wits on November 9th and 10th. The play was a Baker Play by Glenn Hughes. The seventeen seniors had many hours of grueling practice.

The senior play was directed by Mrs. Harrington. She and the cast worked very hard getting ready for this humorous play. Seniors were rolling in some mornings at 7:00 AM to go over their lines. As the days counted down closer and closer to the premiere presentation, the students would find themselves practicing in the morning and after school, sometimes even at night, also.

The Nit Wits was a comedy presented in three acts. It was about a college boy who wanted to make money for a college education. He tried to accomplish this when his parents were away on vacation. He made a plan to pose as a psychologist, but little did he know, his parents were on to his little plan. To assure a good turn out, the lad's father hired actors to patronize his son's clinic. Portraying people with a grand variety of mental problems, the actors made the boy's day and the play a real hoot.

The seniors who took part spent countless hours learning lines and painting sets. But without the help of Mrs. Harrington's directing, Mrs. Shumway's pinch-hitting, Mrs. Bush and her desk top publishing class producing programs and advertising, not to mention the aid of Mr. Turnbull and Mr. Hoag, the play would have never gotten off the ground.

Look Where We Use Computers

by Emily Simpson

Everywhere you look in the school, people are using computers. Everything from word-processing to learning music theory can be done on computers now. Even grades and averages and schedule data are stored on computer now.

Upstairs there are a total of thirty-two computers, eight printers, two modems, one LCD Panel, and one scanner found in the computer computers room, the library, and in classrooms. These computers are open to be used by the students during many of their study halls. Students use these computers to type assignments, make posters, or play games. "I only use computers when I have to type something for a class," said Kim Somerville.

In the elementary most of the classrooms have their own computers. They use computers to type stories and play educational games. However, these computers are old and there are usually not enough for all the students. As a result, many of the elementary classes also use the computer room.

With all these programs and computers, we're really learning with computers now.

Writing original scripts for the sixth grade Columbus play, Ronnie Miller and Albert Berdon work on the computer in Mrs. Haight's room. Writing done on a computer is easier to edit and duplicate than hand written material.

Playing on a computer Christina Kara demonstrates one of the non-academic uses for the library's computers. However she is learning about computers while she plays.

Take a Look in the DL Room

by Emily Simpson

The DL Room is like no other classroom in Morris. It has six large screen TV's. No, this is not a movie marathon room. The TV's, along with an array of other equipment, allow up to three schools to get together and have class.

At this time, there are three regular classes held in the DL room. Two are broadcasted from Milford, and one is sent from Morris to Milford. Mr. Ritzman, who teaches AP history in the DL room to lea both kids from Morris and Milford, is optimistic about the future of distance learning. "This will open up the door to courses we can't normally offer in a small school."

Three seniors take advantage of the new technology to take an AP class in Morris at 7:15 every morning. These students come for AP Bio. Besides coming to school early each day, they must go to a lab class held on one weekend every month. But it will be worth it. If these students score three or better on the AP exam, they could receive credit from their college.

AP is something we've got now.

What are the Ways We Read?

by Emily Simpson

Books, journals, pictures, authors, and illustrators: these are some aspects of reading that the kindergarten through third grade teachers focus on in their classrooms.

In kindergarten, the students learn by using books that revolve around themes. They look at pictures to help them figure out what the words are saying.

The first graders hension through the Reading Recovery TM program. In elementary coordination with the reading teachers, the first grade teacher tries to foster a love for reading in the children by reading simple books as a whole class or in small groups. Writing is also emphasized in first grade. "Now we realize that reading and writing are one and the same thing." says Mrs. Holcombe.

By second grade, students have learned the basic skills of reading. Now they focus on comprehension and thinking about the problems the characters are having in the books. They try to develop independence in their reading.

By third grade students have well developed skills, and they can say, "We're really reading now."

Finished with his work, Mark Weissmann takes a break to read. Mark is a student in Ms. McCann's third grade.

We all know what a favorite is. We each have our own favorite TV shows, favorite clothes, and even favorite books.

The fourth through sixth grade students were glad to share some of their favorite books and the reasons they liked that book so much.

"My favorite book is Valentine Frankenstein because it is really funny," said o Chelsea Rendo. However Joe Menard, who is in the same fifth grade class as Chelsea, re would rather be scared than made to laugh. "The Ghost Next Door is good 'cause it's so scary," said Joe.

The sixth graders tend to agree with Joe. "I like Welcome to Camp Nightmare because it's creepy," said Amanda Longcor. And although Dawn Dawyot agrees this is a good book, she didn't have one favorite book. "I think all the Fear Street Books are good because they are mysterious and scary. I don't like the Goosebump books because they aren't scary enough," said Dawn.

We all have different tastes and favorites, but as these kids could tell you, we all like to read.

What Tests Do We Have Now

by Emily Simpson

During high school there are many new types of tests students have to take. You have to take mid-terms and finals for the first time once you enter seventh grade. Then, at the end of eighth grade, you have to decide whether you want to enter the regents or non-regents tract. If you enter the regents tract, you can take a maximum of eight regents tests. Although some of these will be like finals, covering only one year school of material, others will be on a comhigh posite of two or even three years of material. Even joining the non-regents tract will not make you exempt from taking tests. You will still have to take the regents competency tests.

Other tests you will need to take include various achievement tests that test your general knowledge in some subjects. The SAT I test is the most commonly taken of these tests. It tests competency in both English and Math. In tenth grade many students also take the ASVAB test to help them determine what career they would be good at.

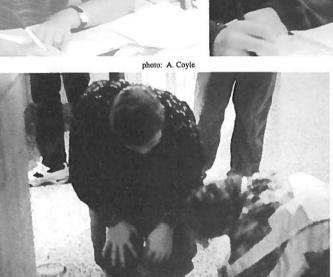

Testing is really something we have now.

Hard at work in math class, Winn Hoag and Kim Whitehead demonstrate a problem on the board. Writing on a chalk board sometimes makes it easier to remember how to do the problem.

What Are Our Test Taking Tips

by Emily Simpson

Everyone knows that nervous feeling that comes right before you take a test, and each person deals differently with pre-test anxiety.

Most people agree studying before the test is the best way to keep yourself from worrying. Jody Schaffer said the best way to study is to "repeat the information over and over to yourself." Chris MacLeman suggests "Highlight important facts and read yourself so they g stick in your head." Angela Tedesco, very sagely said, "Don't study two seconds before the tests, and make sure you do the review sheets." Christina Kara said, "Have somebody quiz you on the material." Even Mike Lehtonen had some words of wisdom, to add: "When you're sleeping, put the book under your pillow so all the information sinks in."

During the test Teresa DeLaurentiis said to "look for clues in the other questions." and Loriann Maerz said to "take the test in a quiet room where you can concentrate."

However, Oliver Bourgeois' advice summed it all up, "Just don't worry about it."

What About a Little Music?

It has long been known that those involved with music generally have an increased interest in academics.

The band started out the year with a bang at the fall concert. "Where No Man Has Gone Before" was a hit featuring tracts one would recognize from episodes of Star Trek and the old Star Wars movies.

Learning to play an instrument starts at a very young age. Learning and listening starts young and the practice does not stop when one leaves the building. Mr.

Coach Hoag was a brand new varisty coach this year, waiting for brand new fields. The fields had to be found in Gilbertsville, but the team found some skill and luck under Mr. Hoag's direction. Mr. Hoag had coached soccer before, but this year he got a chance to coach at the varsity level.

"I was happy with the end result of the season," Coach Hoag said. "I was pleased that the boys learned some soccer and a little about themselves. We had a pretty good year, and next year they should come out with a really good team. Coaching turned out to be a learning experience for me, and it was a fun job. I'd be willing to do it again next year."

The ball ricochets off Geoff Grant's foot as he tries to stop it in a game against Schenevus.

Looking Up For Modified Girls' Modified Soccer

by Scott Pegg

The Girls' Modified Soccer team had a fairly good season with second year modified coach Coach Hoag and his assistant Mrs. Deysenroth. "I thought the girls had a wonderful season," said Coach Hoag. "They were an excellent group to work with, nothing but enjoyment. Our record improved greatly from last year. The girls worked hard and I'm happy with the results."

With this being his second year coaching, Coach Hoag knew more of what to expect and more about the game.

Prepared for almost anything, Sarah Moore gets ready to stop the ball and send it the other way.

Front: D. Cotten, K. Wells, L. Hoag, S. Purdy, A. Tedesco, T. Miller, L. Maerz. Middle: M. Norlund, L. Simpson, T. Neer, C. Kara, J. Phillips, S. Wing, M. Lull, A. Robinson. Back: Coach Hoag, E. Straney, B. Anderson, A. Heath, A. McDade, S. Moore, C. Webster, K. Lehtonen.

Coach Hoag and Assistant Coach Devsenroth try to decide a winning strategy.

Homecoming Gets a New Slant

Homceoming at MCS was a bit different this year for a couple of really good reasons. Since football wasn't an option, there were no cheerleaders. Some cheerleaders got together, however, to put some kind of Homecoming together, but since there was no game, there was no parade. And the game called the "Homecoming Game" was held at Wright Field in Oneonta. The Booster Club had other obligations, so they postponed the dinner and the bonfire until later on in the year. There was a spirit week, but there was no pep rally. Some things never change, however, and there was a dance with a crowning. Since the senior class is so small, the choices were limited, but the crowning went on as always before. Some things don't need a new slant.

Cars Cost

Kevin Roe has a new OLD Buick Regal. It's a 1985 model, gray with red interior. He wishes the seats were leather, but he had to pay for the car himself.

Kevin works at Taylor Rental in order to afford this car-owning. He puts things together, repairs machines, waits on customers, and loads trucks. He pays for his own insurance, $1200 a year. It takes a lot of work to afford it.

Kevin admits that he knows how to change a tire, and "even my own oil." Cars cost a lot, right from the start, but Kevin can feel in control in his own car.

Amanda doesn't gravitate toward fast and easy. It's the Neptune for her and perhaps a couple of lobster tails and some Chocolate Mousse Cheesecake, IF her grandma is buying. Man can not live by bread alone. Just ask Amanda and Sarah.

Video Viewing

Amanda Heath and her family really don't have that much time to watch videos which probably explains why they only rent one a month. They get them in town or at Oneonta, and they almost always watch them as a family. That means they watch Disney films for Tiffany and they watch other ones as well. "Sometimes, my parents tell me to close my eyes," Amanda admits.

Amanda doesn't tape off her television, however. Even though she loves MTV, she never watches it because she only gets NBC, CBS, and ABC. Besides, her VCR won't record and she wouldn't know how to program it if it did. Videos and popcorn, one night a month.

The Science of Sneaker Selection

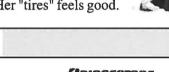

Heather Mudge wears Reebok sneakers. She does this because they are comfortable and they don't pinch her toes. She loves the way they look on her feet and the way they feel. And, if she decides to play basketball, she will wear them then, as well.

Lots of people don't shop at Payless, but Heather's mom will not pay one penny over $40 for Heather's sneakers. With that in mind, Payless Shoe Store is a good place for Heather to shop. She's been to other places, "They're nice, but they're expensive." She doesn't mind because everyone in her family wears Reebok sneakers.

Lots of people spend lots of money, but Heather just goes for the wear. Her "tires" feels good.

Winn has no trouble answering the question: Do you believe in the death penalty? She answered "Yes!!!" The fact is she feels so strongly about it that her answer warrants three exclamation points. "I believe if someone kills someone else, he should pay with his life."

She says she gets her strong ideas from the mess of this world. She knows her dad and her friends feel the same way, but she wouldn't care at all if they felt differently. " I think there would be less crime, and it would be cheaper in the long run, if they injected people who had killed someone."

She is a strong advocate for the death penalty, and she thinks that if juries get tough, that won't be enough. "We need something more." This might be it. If you kill, you should die.

A Hair Affair

"Well, it all started with a mistake in the shower," Ryan Elliott said. It could have been disastrous, but he caught it in the nick of time. His sister's shampoo-in hair coloring was in the shower. He grabbed it and had it ready to go on his head. He realized it soon enough to waylay the problem. "I never lathered." he said.

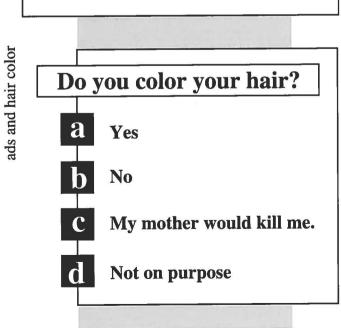

Ryan doesn't color his hair, with shampoo-in or permanent or even Kool-aid. He only wears it as a basic brown. He thinks it's OK for people to show their individuality by coloring their hair, however. "It changes a person's appearance a little," he added.

Pets Aplenty

There's the family dog, the little kitty, and the iguana? Family pets have gone to wide extremes at the Pasternak house. Andy has a two foot lizard named Bracey, two little lizards that he caught in Florida, and a salt water clown fish.

Andy lets Bracey run around in his bedroom. "My mother doesn't like that," he admitted. Bracey eats bananas, lettuce, and some special protein powder that Andy puts on his food.

"The fish is cool,"Andy explains. He is a flourescent blue with black circles, and his tail is like an eel. Guess that beats a brown dog or a tabby cat anyday. And where does one buy an iguana collar? Not at a hardware store, probably.

Surely Going Steady

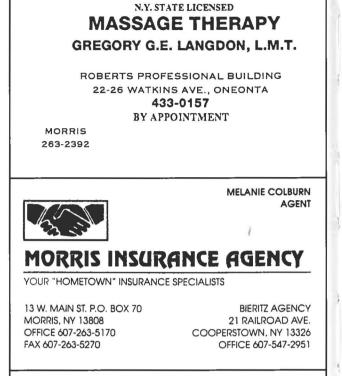

The survey asked "Have you ever gone steady?" Then, "When did you go steady for the first time." Chris MacLeman admitted he started going with someone nearly in kindergarten. Just what does that mean, to a kindergarten kid? "You eat lunch by them and you talk to them in school. You agree you are boyfriend and girlfriend." Since then, Chris isn't quite as sure about going steady. But he is sure about a few things...the lockers are

We are Pizza People

Pizza is a favorite food of most teens, and so it is with Allison Rowe. She, however, likes pizza from New York City. "That is definitely the best place to buy pizza, right in Little Italy," she explained. However, when it is her night to cook, she hikes past the video store and the flower shop and she buys from Nina's. "I order cheese because everyone in my family likes a different kind. Cheese pizza is a safe bet."

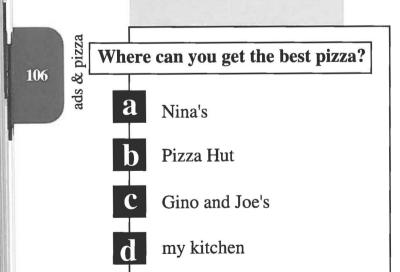

Allison has worked at a pizza place in Sea Bright, New Jersey, and they made their crust thin, just the way she likes it. She could waitress here and is hoping for a job, soon.

You can find this pizza slinging senior at Nina's most of the time. He's worked here forever.

Best of Luck Ray from Mrs. Shumway

When no one is home, supper after basketball can also be pizza. Abby eats out while her folks are out of town.

The TV was covered with OJ this and OJ that almost all year. Even after the verdict was given, viewers still heard about what he was up to. But, Rachel Myers didn't listen anymore. She doesn't even care about the verdict. She said. "It's so stupid because he got all the attention, not the people who got murdered." Like lots of Americans, she believes that because the trial was televised, it became too long. "It really would have been different if it had not been on TV. It was too public."

Since OJ is still making money with his book written while he was in prison, and since at this time, there has been no resolution in the civil trial against OJ, Rachel still isn't listening. "I don't care to know about it."

Church Choices

Choosing a church isn't something that Jeff Denza has done yet; in fact, lots of people haven't. But, Jeff is a very "churchy" kind of person. He really has a strong belief in God, but he adds, "There are so many faiths. I can't say mine is real and another is false. " So he goes to church once in a while here and once in a while there. Church is calming for Jeff, and he enjoys it when he goes. It helps him connect to God. "I listen, and I don't make judgments."

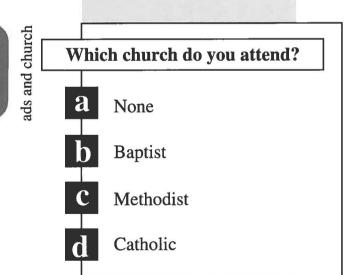

Jeff thinks he has this belief because his mom sort of passed it down. She has a degree in anthropolgy. That means she looks at lots of churches from lots of times in history...just like Jeff.

Hobbies for Health

Hobbies take up spare time and give you something to do that you can enjoy. Lisa Amatuccio loves riding her horse Roxy and skating at Interskate. You can find her doing these things about three times a week each. Why? "Because I love it!" Lisa explains, laughing.

Roxy needs to be taken care of two times a day. "Chores can be a pain." Lisa says while rolling her eyes. However, riding Roxy is what makes the care worthwhile. Lisa rides alone usually and around the block by her house. Lisa trained Roxy so they have a special relationship.

Skating is Lisa's other passion. "I am really good at the Limbo. I can usually win at 12 inches," Lisa says. Lisa meets her friends at the rink. She doesn't dance; she just skates. Hobbies are like that.

If you like it, you do it a lot.

A Look at Lockers

Right size? Too small? Wrong color? All of the above? That's what Darrell Moore thinks about lockers in the school. Really, "They are no big deal to me," he says. He's not really concerned either way. The color isn't right. "I like blue," he adds. Being a sporty kind of guy, he pobably thinks they should be blue and white!

"There isn't enough room to hang a bag and your coat in a locker if you have any books there," Darrell says. But it's lucky no one shares. He had to in seventh grade, and that was bad.

Darrell's not one of the kind of guys who decorates his locker. No posters, pictures, anything. "It gets

Look At All the Good Times

Looking back at all of the good times this year, we wonder what more fun could we possibly have? We've laughed and shared many memories. Students and staff have gotten themselves involved in activities. Now we can say it's been a great year. We can look back and be proud. This time won't come again. What a great way to end. The things we've done required time and energy. The time we've got this summer will make us miss now.

A cold pep rally, but a fun time anyway. The students bundle up and head outdoors in the snow for the fall peprally to kick off winter sports.

A Time to Paint and a longer time to clean up. The seniors paint the sets for the senior play. Andrea Alger shows her technique.

Halloween is a special time, and the faces of the kids are a real crowd pleaser.

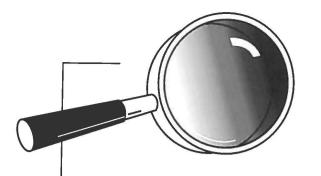

A crowd of a different kind, but still pleased, are the seniors from the Christmas dinner.

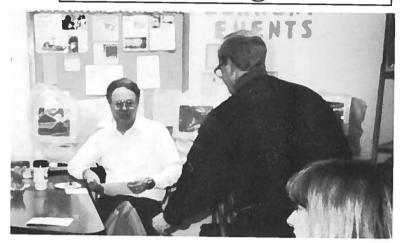

The Middle Level Dance was a chance for the 6th through 8th graders to shine. Melissa Kara and Erica Boyd do that just fine. The dance was to celebrate the excellent speeches made and campaigns run by the candidates for the Middle Level Student Council. Pictured at left were the candidates.

Looking Toward Summer

Once we get past February break, look out! What started out as a slow moving winter turns into speedy spring. We've only been here for what seems like days, and the year got away from us. Now, we have marching band, spring sports, final projects looking us dead in the face. And what we thought was a whole lot of time left, we've found to be days. The sports banquet, awards night, and moving up day got us a chance to dress up. And now, it's summer!

The Morris post office had its 200th anniversary. Post mistress Mrs. Quintin invited the MCS Band for the party. Because of rain, it was held in the firehouse, but the band music made a nice addition to the ceremonies.

Toward the end of the year, except for studying for finals, study halls can become long. Lauren Ewing, Walden Moeslinger, Beau Barton, and John Patterson wait out the last few minutes before lunch.

Tiffany Heath enjoyed her grandparents' visit for the bar-b-que. We saw her grandma again when Mrs. Heath brought her to help with the Sports Banquet.

Boys' Basketball

The varsity boys posted a record of 7-13. The season was much more exciting than the record alone may show. The majority of the games could have swung either way in the fourth quarter. Only three players returned from last year, which made the work a little harder.

The boys also got a new coach, Mr. Mackey, midway through the season. All Stars were John Jacobsen and Geoff Grant, first and second team respectively. John and Geoff led in points, thanks to the many assists from Kevin Meredith and Scott Goodspeed. John led in blocks, and helped lead with rebounds along with fellow senior, Matt Seifert.

Coach Mackey also lead the JV's into battle on the floor. The JV boys enjoyed a wonderful season ending with a record of 15-3-1, narrowly losing the championship game.

Point leaders were Ryan Harrington, Chris Coyle, and Josh Sterling. Top rebounders were John Moskos, Dave and John Harris. Dave Harris and Yasir Barton led with blocks.

With an air of jubilance around him, Senior Scott Goodspeed smiles gleefully after nailing the winning basket in his last high school basketball game.

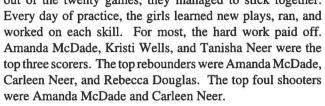

Giving his teamates a chance to get open, Yasir Barton looks on preparing to inbound the ball in New Berlin. Building the excitement for the game, the JV boys huddle for a cheer. Morris won 74-60 over New Berlin.

Girls' Basketball

The varsity girls team finished with an impressive record of 14-6. The team consisted of ten players, including three seniors. Top scorer, Junior Abby Matteson, averaged 21 points per game, while junior Jessica Joy averaged 10.4. Top rebounders, Abby Matteson and Jody Schaffer, had over 150 rebounds each for the season.

Tri-Vallley first team all-stars were Abby Matteson and Jessica Joy. Jody Schaffer and Rebecca Myers played in the exceptional seniors game. The JV Girls basketball team had a good season. Although, they only had three wins Dangerous behind the arch. Rebecca Schindler fires up a three pointer.

The JV girls rest a moment from their play to get a word of advice from Coach Tracy.

Modified Basketball

The girls modified team consisted of eight players. This was the first time coaching for Coach Jill Forester.

The team had only three returning players: Karen Lehtonen, Mindy Lull, and Latricia Hazen. They played a total of ten games, and they won three of them. Brandy Anderson and Mindy Lull were the top scorers. The season was fun for them. Ms. Forester said, "I think we had a good year, and I hope they improve more next year." The boys modified team was again coached by Mr. Jacobsen. Their numbers were a bit stronger, so their teams were divided by grade level. Once again, Coach Jacobsen stressed the idea of teamwork and personal improvement. Winning isn't the most important part of the modified program. Learning the game and learning to be part of the team are.

Eighth Grade Boys: Front: M. Jacobsen. Middle: A. Goodspeed, B. Bockus, M. Jacobsen, B. Phelan, A. Pasternak. Back: J. Schaffer, J. Eberling, M. Norlund, J. Bugyi, P. Miller, Coach Jacobsen.

The spring comes every year, even though sometimes we think it won't. But it did. and with it came an old sport, Vasity Softball and a new sport Golf.

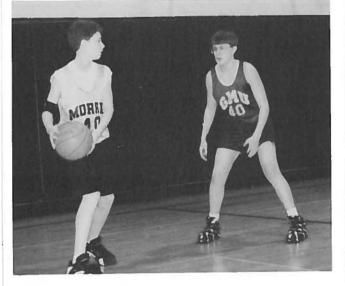

The varsity softball team's season, however, came to an end after they had to cancel almost all of their games because of the lack of numbers. The whole team started out with just twelve players. The team began the season with first year coach Coach Forester.

The year was a short year for the varsity softball team, and some girls were disappointed. Penny Hubert, a new student to MCS, said "There wasn't really a team effort." Rian Hoag, another disappointed player added, "I don't think we worked together, and I thought we didn't have any strong players to help out. That was one thing we really needed. I hope we have a better year

Discussing their game plan, Coach Forester tells the girls the plan for their first attack.

Golf Team: Front: M. Waffle, B. Dunnigan. Back: A. Coyle, D. Harris, T. DeLaurentiis, M. Jacobsen. M. Norlund, Coach Jacobsen.

Golf & Varsity Softball

For the first time, Morris had a golf team. Asked what he thought about this, Coach Jacobsen responded, "I was very pleased that we were able to offer golf this year, basically because it's a lifelong activity, not just a one or two month series of games. We had a very young team that improved each match by at least twenty strokes. Golf is a sport that requires tremendous individual concentration."

The future looks pretty confident because the team consisted of mostly seventh and eighth graders whose games will keep improving with more practice. Although not very victorious, they had fun learning and playing a very difficult sport.

Varsity Softball: Front: K. Phelan, L. Dunham, C. Neer, Coach Forester. Back: P. Hubert, A. Jones, C. Cleary, R. Hoag, Coach Forester, T. Newell, I. Seifert.

For the first time in three years, Morris had its own track team, equipped with new uniforms and their own coach. The team was lead to meets by Miss Tyrrell. Coaching track was her first coaching experence.

The team was quite competitive although they didn't win a meet . Scott Pegg, a senior on the team, commented, "We just couldn't win all the events on the same day."

The spectators were always in for a good show, however, because the chances were that someone from Morris would place in every event that was entered. The best times and distances for the

The Boys of Spring

Varsity Baseball

The baseball season got off to a slow start. The weather made everything miserable and the fields weren't ready for the season. The usual routines were hard to get into. The team came in young, but they improved quickly. The players had a positive attitude, both on the field and with each other The pitching staff and the batting greatly improved, but it was a weird season. The boys lost games they should have won and won the ones they might have lost. : It was a young team with potential. Playing experienced ball clubs, the team realized they would play better if they concentrated on the things they could do well instead of worrying about the things they could not do," Coach Ritzman reflected.

Leaders on the team were All-star Howard Barton with a .360 batting average and 543 on base percentage and John Moskos and Travis Warley who were honorable mentions. This team was an academic team, as well. With an overall average of 92.138, this team was ranked fourth in the state for Scholar-Athlete teams.

Ryan Elliott, Chris MacLeman, Jesse Sanders, Sarah Moore, and T.J. Moore needed to prepare a solution to OM's "Amusin' Cruisin'" problem, which they performed in the divsion III category. Besides this long term problem, the group was rated on a spontaneous short term program. The team came in second behind Sherburne-Earlville high school.

Winterguard Does Well

by Danielle Phillips

Our Mystical Illusions had a very fine 95-96 season.

The guard had many new, young members, and they spent a lot of time practicing. To gain experience being in front of large crowds, Mrs. Sorrentino, the coach, arranged for the guard to perform at Morning Program for elementary students and teachers and during half time at a girls' basketball game against New Berlin.

Throughout the season, there were a number of competitions in which the Mystical Illusions competed in Class A, performing their show called "Hotel California." The competitions included the BGA show in Color Guard Circuit Championships, Clifton Park.

Afton and the Laurens show in Milford, and at both shows the guard won a first place trophy. At the shows in Herkimer and Sidney, Illusions received second place. Other shows included two competitions at Dryden and the Hunter-Tannersville show. They then went on to the championships that were held in Shenendehowa. Here thirteen area guards competed, and the Morris girls came in ninth.

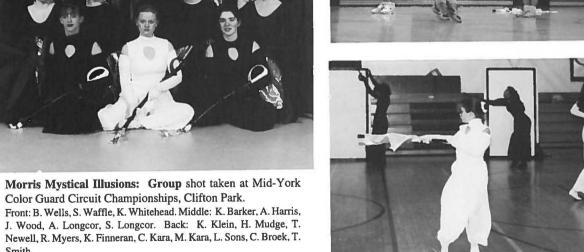

Being a member of this guard takes a hardworking person. Rachel Myers said, "Being in winterguard takes a lot of dedication, time and hard work, but we did it, and we are very happy with our performances."

PARP: Huge Success

by Kim Somerville

PARP is held each year to encourage children to read. This year's theme for PARP was the Olympics. The committee decided on the Olympics because this is the year of the 1996 Summer Games in Atlanta. "Go for the Gold, Read" was the slogan The committee made up twenty events such as an opening ceremony and a torch passing, a TV turn-off week, and GEAR. Get Everyone and Read. It was a school-wide "stop what you're doing and read" time. There was a book fair and book swap. There was a faculty and student vollevball competition one evening with an auction following. Mr. Mackey read The Little Engine that Could and Mr. Martinelli plus other faculty members presented a play adapted from the story "Chicken Little." Many high school athletes were guest readers for classes, and many townspeople also took turns as readers in classes. There was the popular sleepover in the library. The committee planned various activites for all grade levels and all kinds of "Parpticipation."

PARP took a lot of preparation from committee members: Mrs. Haight, Mrs. Shumway, Mrs. Kirsch, Ms. Wilson, Mrs. Layman, Mrs. Holcombe, Mr. Jacobsen, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Perrotti, and Mrs. Galley.

Special Senior Days and Nights

by Emily Simpson and Sioux Carey

Two big events for the Class of 1996 happen in the spring. A trip to Boston and the Senior Prom helped end the year up well for the seniors.

On May 3-6 ten members of the senior class and four chaperones went on a class trip to Boston. They left at 6:00 in the morning on Saturday and arrived home, exhausted but happy, at 6:30 Monday evening. The time in between was packed with viewing the many sites of Boston and the surrounding area.

The class stayed at the Susse Chalet outside of Boston and used the T to get into and around the city. There was something of interest for everyone. "It was a wonderful trip and I enjoyed seeing my seniors from a different perspective," said chaperone Mrs. Birdsall. It was Friday, May 24, at 8:00 at the City Club Restaurant at Howard Johnson's in Norwich. It was the "Hold On To the Night "MCS senior prom.

The decorations were spread out around the ball room to make it look like a glamorous night. There was gold tinsel thrown every where and little shimmering glitter stars sprinkled every- where.

The restaurant prepared a delicious buffet table with a variety of tasty foods to choose from. After dinner, the dancing began. Music was played by DJ Rex Smith from Soundtech. There were strobe lights, fog machines, and lazer lights every where on the dance floor. Dancing lasted until about 12:00 when it was time for the coronation to begin.

When it was time for every one to leave, there were prom souvenirs for everyone. It was a night to hold on to. The 1995-1996 journalism class traveled to Gettysburg to pick up the Morrisanian. Here, Danielle Phillips, Scott Pegg, Emily Simpson, and Beckie Myers pose on a cannon next to the Gettysburg Addresss site.

Mr. Bridsall and Jessica Schindler intently watch the ball game on the Senior Trip to Boston. Mrs. Birdsall wasn't as taken with it.

Just being at a professional baseball game was enough. Kim Somerville, Jessica Johnson, Matt Seifert, and Teresa DeLaurentiis enjoy the afternoon at the ole' ballgame.

The seniors enjoyed the city, the flowers, and the time together. Andrea Alger, Emily Simpson, Jess Schindler, Dani Phillips, and Beckie Myers strike a pose next to a tulip bed.

Disney On Parade

MCS Marching Band went on to a new season. The band practiced nights and mornings to prepare for the Memorial Day Parade and the Sherburne Pageant of Bands.

The band headed down the street to a Disney Medley. Mr. Ernst arranged fourteen Disney songs from such popular movie as The Jungle Book, Cinderella, Song of the South, and Mary Poppins. Mr. Ernst devoted over fifty hours to the job, and he said,"I don't like doing it, but I love having done it." Mr.Ernst added that music prepared commercially now is mostly for field show competitions and not for street marching, so it does not work in the Sherburne Parade. He said when he does the arranging, he can better feature our strong sections of band.

Memorial Day was warm and dry and the 1996 debut of the MCS Band was well-received. Former Superintendent Al Barden gave the speech at the cemetary, and Melinda Lull recited "The Gettysburg Address." Both were done in a moving and inspiring way.

The jazz band competed Friday night. They were scored high enough to receive a second place trophy.

Saturday at Sherburne was also warm and dry. The winterguard performed first at 9:40. They took home a second place trophy in that competition. The concert band and the parade unit both earned fourth place trophies. The Marching Mustangs were a huge hit. All along the streets the small children sang along, and the helium balloons attached to many of the instruments really sparkled in the sun. Mr. Ernst said, "I am really pleased with all of the efforts made by our kids. They gave me their best."

The percussion section marches back toward the school on Memorial Day. Ben Howland, John Bugyi, and Michael Tedesco hit the beat loud and clear.

The band and colorguard, exhausted with the heat and from the long parade through Sherburne pose crazily for the photographer once they are back at the school.

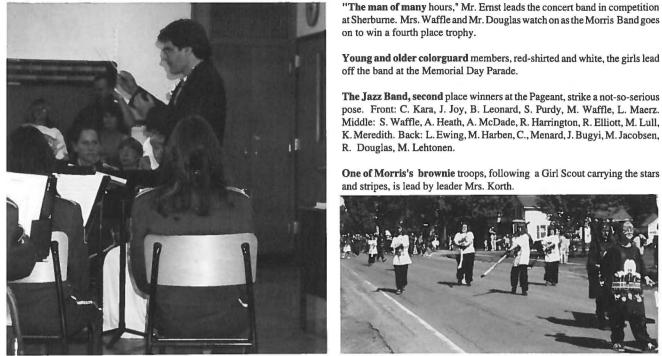

Teresa DeLaurentiis and Stephanie Waffle, 1996 Drum Majorettes, dress in their "almost Minnie" costumes to lead the parade at Sherburne.

Leading the colorguard down the street was Mrs. Sorrentino. The colorguard's Mickey Mouse shirts dressed the band in Red, White, and Blue. The balloons fluttered above the girls and the instruments. MCS sparkled in the sun.

Sister and Brother Team: Michael and Karen Lehtonen file in for the concert band portion of competition. Sherburne students are in the background, setting up our band configurations.

The blizzard of '96 follows the hottest year in recorded global history. The blizzard crippled northern US cities where airports, roads, and even the postal service ceased to function. Alaska, in contrast, had very little snow during the winter season. After July's heat wave killed hundreds in the US, eleven hurricanes swept across the western hemisphere, the most since 1933. Some weather experts have linked such extreme conditions to possible global warming.
