

She entered Troy Seminary in 1849, and graduated in 1850.

In 1851 she married John Edgar Gould, a merchant of New York city, who died in 1873 in Algiers, whither he had gone in pursuit of health.

Mr. Gould was possessed of rare musical ability, and was the author of numerous anthems, chants, and secular songs. He was the President of the Abt Society of Philadelphia.

One son and five daughters were the children of this marriage, all of whom inherited the musical tastes of their father. Mrs. Gould has been for many years a resident of Philadelphia, and a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Her address, in 1895, was Mrs. John Edgar Gould, 529 S. Forty-first Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Bartlett, Laura C.,

Daughter of Liberty and Charlotte (Penniman) Bartlett, was born in Williamstown, Mass.

Her father was a U. S. Commissioner, and Judge of Circuit Court for Arkansas. She pursued her studies at home under the tutelage of a governess until she entered Troy Seminary for the school year ending in 1848.

She excelled in mathematics and the languages, and developed superior ability both in painting and in music.

After leaving Troy she taught successively in North and South Carolina, in Virginia, in Owego, N. Y., and in Washington, Ark.

In 1858 she married, in Washington, Ark., James E. Trimble, a graduate of Williams College.

Soon after marriage they located in Farmerville, La., where Mrs. Trimble was at the head of a young ladies' Seminary until her death, which occurred in 1860.

Aside from her school duties, she occupied herself with literary work, and at the time of her decease had nearly completed a book.

Mrs. Trimble had one child, a son who survives her.

Bartlett, Frances C.,

Of Poughkeepsie, was a pupil in Troy Seminary in 1845.

Married Otis Bisbee. Died in 1893.

Bassett, Helen F.,

Daughter of Henry and Deborah (Norton) Bassett, was born at Fort Miller.

Entered Troy Seminary from Racine, Wis., for the school year of 1850 to 1851. Afterwards taught music and painting in Southern schools.

Married, in 1864, George Townsend, of California. Died in Modoc, Cal., in 1872.

A daughter of Mrs. Townsend is Eliza B. Townsend, of 304 Iranistan Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

Bates, Margaret E.,

Daughter of Elijah and Mary (Ashley) Bates, was born in Westfield, Mass.

She attended Westfield Academy, at that time a well-known school. Here her education progressed until she entered Troy Seminary in 1841, remaining one year. She made a special study of painting, for which she developed a decided talent.

She was a member of the Congregational Church of Westfield, and active in every good work, but did not long survive her school days. She died in Westfield, Mass., in 1844.

Bates, Elizabeth H.,

Daughter of Wm. R. Bates, M. D., and Frances Lee (Hanners) Bates, was born in Charlemont, Franklin Co., Mass.

Being somewhat delicate in health as a child, she was early inured to open air life, riding on horseback, or driving with her father on his professional rounds. Her lessons were often studied in the carriage as she accompanied him.

She entered Troy Seminary in 1848, graduating in 1850.

On her return home she began the study of medicine in her father's office, which she continued for two years, after which she went to the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia. She was one of four graduates in the class of 1854, none of whom are now living. Leaving college she began the practice of her profession in the town where she had lived since her childhood, confining her attention to diseases of women and children, in which she achieved a signal success. At the end of seven years, being ambitious to extend her labors, she removed to Owego, the County seat of Tioga Co., N. Y., and quickly established herself in the favor of the community. At first she met with opposition from the physicians of the County, but was eventually invited by them to join the Medical Society of Tioga County. She was also a member of the Chester County Medical Society.

After twenty-six years spent in the exacting routine of professional life, in which she achieved an enviable record of successful practice, she retired from active duty. She settled in Port Chester, Westchester Co., N. Y., becoming thoroughly identified with the interests of that place.

She was a member of the Congregational Church, and donated the land on which the edifice is built—the value of her gift being estimated at $6,000.

She died in 1898, leaving by her will the sum of $250,000 to found a department for women in the Medical College of the University of Michigan.

Baum, Caroline,

Daughter of Joseph Baum, was born in Demarara, British Guiana, S. A. A pupil in Troy Seminary in 1842. Died in Demarara (an accidental death).

Bay, Sarah Augusta,

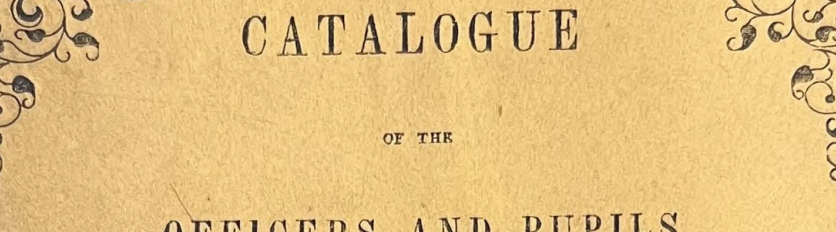

Daughter of Thomas and Harriet (Mansfield) Bay, was born in Hudson-on-Hudson, N. Y.

The youngest of six children, she continued at home with her mother while pursuing her education, until her entrance to Troy Seminary in 1840, graduating in 1844. In 1845 she married Henry Redfield, of Troy, living successively in Brooklyn, N. Y., Plainfield, N. J., and later in New York city, where she died in 1885. Her daughter, writing in tender remembrance, says, "My mother's recollections of her days in the Seminary were among the happiest of her life. She was warmly attached to Mrs. Willard, who was especially attracted to her, as my father has told me. He first met my mother at one of the Seminary receptions. Her married life was retired, but filled with motherhood and sweet charities, in the administration of which she seemed ever guided by her beautiful faith. In her death all who knew her were bereaved."

The address of her daughter in 1896 was, Miss Julia W. Redfield, 6 Tompkins Avenue, St. George, Staten Island.

Bayeux, Mary,

Daughter of Henry F. and Martha (Vail) Bayeux. A pupil in Troy Seminary from 1842 to 1844. Died in 1849.
