

TRADE VOLUME RECEIVES PUSH

Semi-Night Clubs, Featuring Entertainment With Food, Making Phenomenal Headway

By Edward H. Dutcher (Business Editor)

(This is the sixth in an indefinite series of articles on retail business conditions in Metropolitan Long Island.)

Restaurants and eating places in Metropolitan Long Island, it is estimated, do something like $8,000,000 or more business a year. This volume automatically places this phase of retail business in an important position in the general local market.

And, according to reports, this amount will be well exceeded this year, for proprietors have had the advantage of a month's head start over last year.

In 1935, the "active" season for these popular taverns and grills did not get under way until Decoration day, May 30, due to unseasonable weather and the fact that the semi-night clubs were not so well established and known as they are now.

Summer Attraction The "night club" life in Metropolitan Long Island is fast becoming one of its principal summertime attractions, although this area necessarily cannot go into the field so extensively as the larger places in Greater New York. However, here the menus are as enticing and programs as entertaining and amusing as those of the "big neighbor" and the local places are pulling a lot of trade into Nassau county.

"These eating places, which now feature dancing and entertainment, have come into their own only since the repeal of prohibition in December, 1933. In less than three years, these establishments have come to occupy a definite position in the business of the central and southern sections of Nassau county, which comprise Metropolitan Long Island.

Many Bid For Trade There are many inns, taverns, grills, restaurants or the like scattered throughout the villages and communities of the South Shore, all of which are bidding for the lucrative trade. Just how much the field will run over the average yearly income of $5,000,000 is not now known, but it is certain business is better the year and off to a quicker start. It is expected incomes will increase from slight percentages to 50 per cent. or better, in some cases.

A business, generally or as it refers to an individual proprietor or merchant, must make some contribution and give "value for money received" to make the headway that the restaurants have here since the start of 1934. It is interesting to note some of the new practices which have been responsible for this phenomenal rise in this trade.

Entertainment Added Eating places in Metropolitan Long Island and the rest of Nassau county always have been famous for their good foods, excellently and deliciously prepared. While the repeal of prohibition, and the return of wines and liquors, undoubtedly has had considerable to do with the rebirth of the restaurant business in the area and elsewhere after the "lag" of prohibition days, the "beverages" cannot take all the credit.

In addition to offering the finest in foods, wines and liquors, these places have developed a reputation for fine entertainment and other diversified program features. Popular orchestras and bands make dancing a pleasure. Combined with good food and drinks, such as the former establishments offered, are colorful floor shows, special features, orchestra music and atmosphere to attract patrons. In many instances, eating places have gone in for the glamour and regalia of other countries, which were accepted immediately.

HARNETT REQUEST REFUSED BY BECK

Hempstead Judge Will Not Write Convictions On Back Of Licenses

Justice of the Peace Peter Stephen Beck will not write records of convictions for traffic offenses on the back of the renewal of the new operators' licenses, he declared during his weekly traffic court in the Hempstead town hall yesterday. The judge spurned a request from Charles A. Harnett, state commissioner of motor vehicles, that all convictions in his court be recorded on the license. The commissioner's request was in a letter sent to all magistrates in the state, admitted that no law had been enacted compelling such procedure, but urged the judges to do so anyway.

Not Fair To People

"I will not write down any convictions on the license until a law is passed making it mandatory to do it," said Justice Beck. "I do not think it would be fair to the people who are arrested in my court. I have no doubt there will be judges who will comply with the commissioner's request and, in any case, they can leave off names of persons for whom they want to do favors."

The judge asserted he believed it would be discriminatory for him to list convictions on licenses unless judges in the state to do likewise. The question came before Justice Beck when Arthur Murtha of Hempstead was arraigned on a complaint made by Police Justice George E. Serenbets for passing the latter judge's car on the right. Justice Serenbets referred the case to his fellow jurist because of his interest in the matter. Murtha pleaded guilty and, upon recommendation of Justice Serenbets, was let off with a suspended sentence. Murtha presented a $250 bond for his renewal of license for recording convictions.

George J. Gidrey, Hollis, paid $20 for speeding. Arraigned for three violations, Julian Martinson, Amityville, was fined $3 for having four persons in the front seat, $1 for not stopping promptly for a policeman. Terence Mullen, Woodside, was fined $5 for having four persons in the front seat. Passing red lights cost Hyman Pruce, Brooklyn; Herbert Jimpson, New York; and David Arrutis, Brooklyn, $5 each, and Kurt Flanagan, Massapequa, $2. Joseph P. Finn, 28 Harrison avenue, Franklin Square, paid $2 for driving on the wrong side of the road. Christopher Fahey, Jr., 26 Cedar street, Farmingdale, was fined $1 for not having a registration certificate.

The following truck drivers, each ticketed for not having reflectors or emergency flares on their trucks, paid $5 each: Albert Finkelstein, New York; George Gremer, Long Island City; Frank Swedow, Brooklyn; John Zakalyk, Frenchtown, N. J.; Charles Weiss, Brooklyn, and Brun Baldassari, Brooklyn.

Business Notes

It looks as if Metropolitan Long Island stores will be closed tight on Memorial day, Saturday—and it should be that way that day. Freeport merchants, through the merchants' division of the chamber of commerce, have voted unanimously to be closed all day, according to Milton Dangler, chairman of the division. The business area, with exceptions of drug, ice cream and stationery stores, will be shut down 100 per cent.

Lynbrook, through its Merchants' association, headed by Earl S. Briggs, also has voted to suspend operations for the day, and Hempstead merchants have indicated a similar intention. A UNIQUE X-ray machine, which shows how the foot fits into a new shoe, is being used by the New Shoe store on Main street, Hempstead, and South Main street, Freeport. The X-ray, which is creating much interest, penetrates the flesh and leather, revealing just how the bones of the foot fit into the shoe. All a patron does now at the New Shoe store is to determine whether the shoe is the proper fit to be stepped down on and on the X-ray machine. It tells the story, and saves the salesman a lot of talking. It is unique in Metropolitan Long Island.

NEDICK'S, famous for its orange drink, will start work on its Rockville Centre and Lynbrook stores June 1, it was announced today. The corporation already has outlets in Hempstead, Main and Port streets, and in Freeport, South Main street. The Rockville Centre store will be located on the northwest corner of Sunrise highway and North Village avenue.

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS. The general store sold everything from toothpicks to yard-goods. Old cronies made it their meeting place. The old furnace-stove was on view, with a hissing teapot atop it. Today, the "specialty" store has come into its own, and all stores of Metropolitan Long Island are made artistically attractive as will be gleaned from the Review-Star Anniversary-Progress official TRICENTENARY edition 8 special sections—June 3 (Place orders now for extra copies)

STATE RESTS CASE AT MURDER TRIAL

Negro Defendant Is Charged With Killing Two Women At Inwood

The prosecution testimony was nearing completion this noon in the first degree murder trial of Chester White, Inwood negro, before Judge Cortland A. Johnson and a jury in Nassau county court. White is charged with murdering Willie Mae Howard, 16, and her mother, Mrs. Fanny Davis at their home, 204 Walcott street, Inwood, March 29. He is being tried on the specific indictment charging the murder of the daughter. Inspector Harold R. King, Detective Lieutenant William Vaughan and Patrolman George Leary of the fourth precinct were among the state's witnesses who testified. It was charged that White became enraged at Mrs. Davis because she had told him that their friendship was at an end. Statements made by White following his arrest in which he allegedly admitted murdering the two women with a hammer and then locking the door of their apartment, were read into the record by Assistant District Attorney Edward J. Neary, District Attorney Martin W. Littleton is prosecuting the case with George Beaubien and Moxie Rigby defending White.

In their first year of competition, Holland high school's debating twins, Hugh and Bert Nunnallee, won the all-around debate championship of Bell county, Tex.
