

Prime Minister Nur Ahmed Etemadi greets Secretary of State William Rogers.

Mrs. Rogers in center.

Kabul, 1969

Rogers arrived in Kabul in 1969, becoming the first U.S. Secretary of State to visit Afghanistan. He met with King Zahir Shah at Gulkhana Palace and had a luncheon with Prime Minister Etemadi at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The Secretary also laid a wreath at the Mausoleum of Nadir Shah, the King's father.

Courtesy of the U.S. Diplomacy Center, U.S. Department of State.

Top

« President Lyndon B. Johnson and Prime Minister Maiwandwal in the Oval Office.

Vice President Spiro Agnew (center) with Ambassador Robert G. Neumann and King Zahir Shah at Gulkhana Palace. »

- » In Small Things Remembered
- » Creating the Exhibition
- » Remembering the Past: The Early Years of U.S.-Afghan Relations
- » Photographic Diplomacy: A Tribute to James A. Cudney
- » Bringing Images Back to Life: Creative Solutions from the Photographic Restorer

- » Gallery
- » Early Contacts
- » Official Visits
- » Education and Outreach
- » Cultural Diplomacy
- » Developing the Infrastructure
- » Posters
- » Media

This Exhibition is organized by Meridian International Center, Washington, D.C. with support from the U.S. Department of State.

- » Message from the Secretary of State of the United States
- » Message from the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Afghanistan
- » Message from Meridian International Center
- » Afghanistan Exhibition Opening Reception at Meridian
- » Video